Bush leads prayer, rallying cry as US girds for war on terrorists

Officials aware in 1998 of training

By Elizabeth Neuffer

NEW YORK — U.S. officials had warned their counterparts in Saudi Arabia since 1998 that the identities of legitimate Saudi Arabian pilots training in the United States and access to the U.S. military had been subverted by Al Qaeda. Members of the organization had lived in California, Texas, and Oregon, among others.

Some 20 years ago, the United States had first learned of the extent of Al Qaeda’s terrorism training in the United States. Since then, the United States had worked to keep potential terrorists out of the country.

Terrorist empathy

D30

The United States has always feared that terrorists might use its airports to launch attacks. The U.S. government has been working to keep potential terrorists out of the country.

Millions pause

D30

The United States has always feared that terrorists might use its airports to launch attacks. The U.S. government has been working to keep potential terrorists out of the country.

Military option

D30

The United States has always feared that terrorists might use its airports to launch attacks. The U.S. government has been working to keep potential terrorists out of the country.

Millions pause

D30

The United States has always feared that terrorists might use its airports to launch attacks. The U.S. government has been working to keep potential terrorists out of the country.

Military option

D30

The United States has always feared that terrorists might use its airports to launch attacks. The U.S. government has been working to keep potential terrorists out of the country.

Millions pause

D30

The United States has always feared that terrorists might use its airports to launch attacks. The U.S. government has been working to keep potential terrorists out of the country.

Military option

D30

The United States has always feared that terrorists might use its airports to launch attacks. The U.S. government has been working to keep potential terrorists out of the country.

Millions pause

D30

The United States has always feared that terrorists might use its airports to launch attacks. The U.S. government has been working to keep potential terrorists out of the country.

Military option

D30

The United States has always feared that terrorists might use its airports to launch attacks. The U.S. government has been working to keep potential terrorists out of the country.

Millions pause

D30

The United States has always feared that terrorists might use its airports to launch attacks. The U.S. government has been working to keep potential terrorists out of the country.

Military option

D30

The United States has always feared that terrorists might use its airports to launch attacks. The U.S. government has been working to keep potential terrorists out of the country.

Millions pause

D30

The United States has always feared that terrorists might use its airports to launch attacks. The U.S. government has been working to keep potential terrorists out of the country.